

Arkansas Geriatric Education Collaborative Geriatric Junior Faculty Development Award FY 2023

The Donald W. Reynolds Institute on Aging is now accepting applications for a Junior Faculty Development position funded by the Arkansas Geriatric Workforce Enhancement Grant awarded from HRSA.

Objective: An ongoing challenge in the geriatric education of health professionals is developing specialists in a variety of disciplines. One method the Arkansas Geriatric Education Collaborative (AGEC) has developed to address this need has been to create a geriatric junior faculty development award. The AGEC will support a junior faculty member over a 12-month period who desires to become a specialist in Geriatrics. The purpose of this award is to support the career development of professionals in academic and clinical geriatrics and to assist junior faculty who wish to become clinical experts and master teachers of geriatric content. The AGEC will fund the career development of assistant or clinical faculty from the schools of medicine, nursing, pharmacy, the health professions, public health and/or other allied health professionals in academia to provide training in clinical geriatrics.

Eligibility: Individuals eligible to receive the award must have a junior (non-tenured) faculty appointment in the school of medicine, nursing, pharmacy, physician assistant, physical therapy, public health or in another allied health discipline.

Email McAteeRobinE@uams.edu with application, abstract, CV, and dean's letter to apply by May 13, 2022 (materials found at agec.uams.edu/jrfacultyaward).

The application deadline is May 13, 2022.
The award will be made by June 10, 2022 for a start date of July 1, 2022 (end date of June 30, 2023).

This program is funded by the UAMS Arkansas Geriatric Education Collaborative (AGEC). The AGEC is funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration's Geriatric Workforce Enhancement Program under grant #U1QHP28723.